Year 12 are now investigating "Was Israel guilty of unprovoked aggression in the Six-Day War of 1967?"

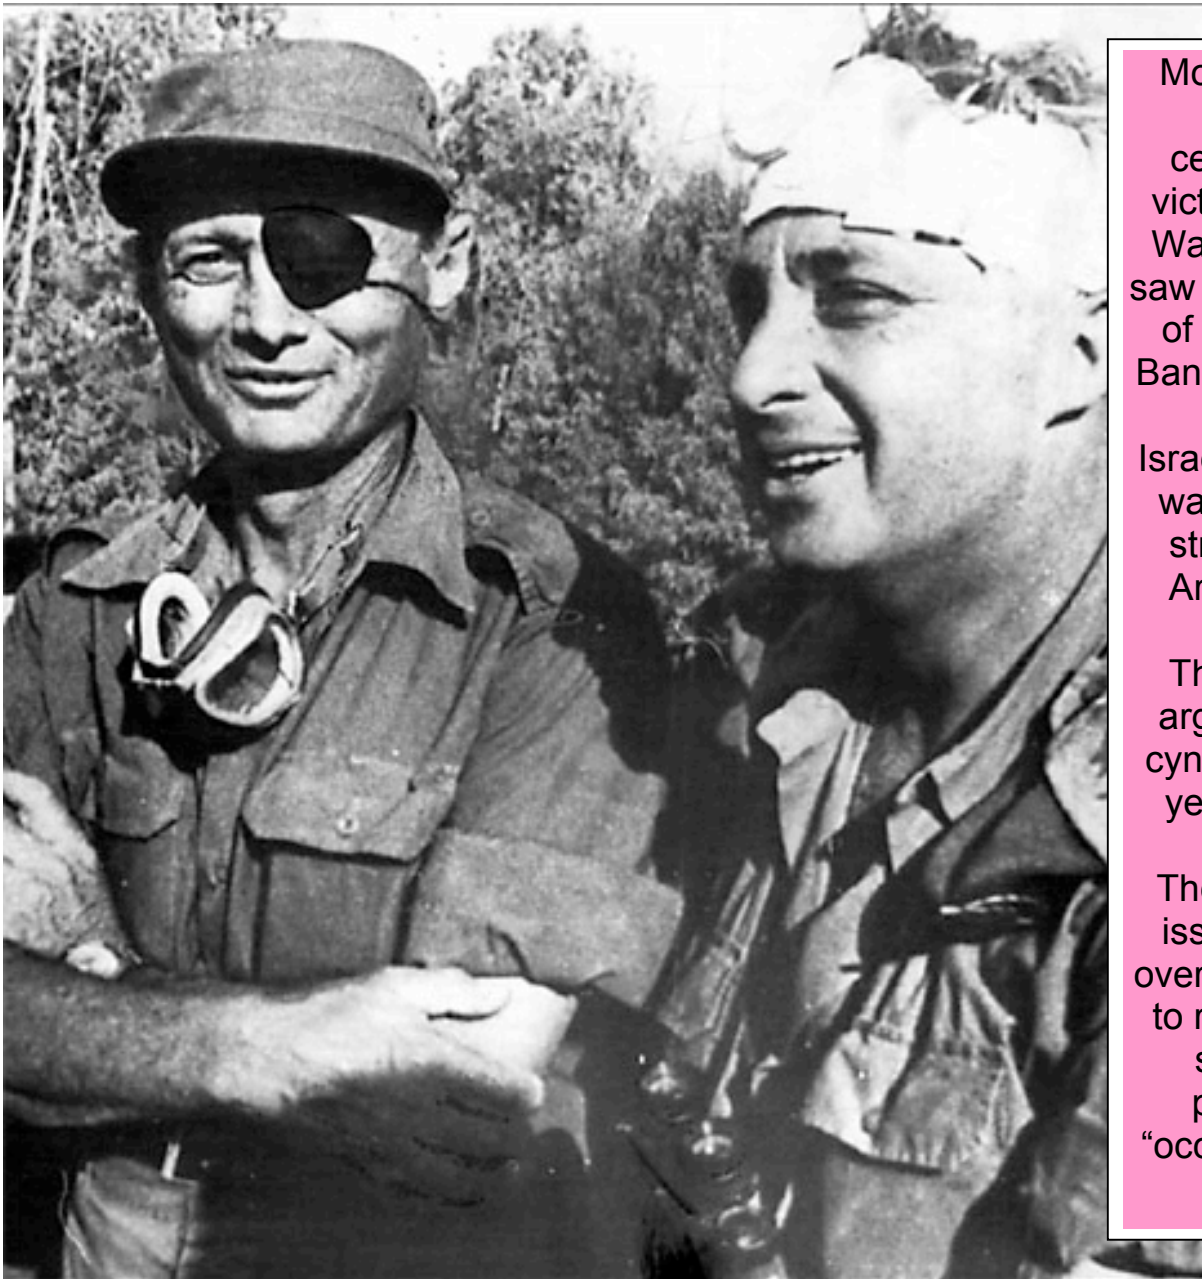

Moshe Dayan and Ariel Sharon celebrate Israel's victory in the 6-Day War of 1967, which saw them take control of Gaza, the West Bank and Jerusalem.

Israel insists that this was a pre-emptive strike against her Arab neighbours.

The Arab nations argue that it was a cynical ploy to seize yet more territory.

The debate on this issue continues to overshadow attempts to reach a peaceful solution to the problem of the "occupied territories" even today.

"History is about turning points that transform the modern world"